'Piezoelectric osteotomy in hand surgery first experiences

April 21st, 2020 - In hand and spinal surgery, nerve lesions are feared complications with the use of standard oscillating saws. Oral surgeons have started using a newly developed ultrasound bone scalpel when performing precise osteotomies. By using a frequency of 25-29 kHz, only mineralized tissue is cut, sparing the soft tissue. This reduces the risk of nerve lesions. As there is a lack of experience with this, HAND SAGE Publications Inc
